Cone Girls Team Wins Women'sChampionship

The Cone Y girls, playing cool and collected all the way, edged the Southern Reweavers 33-31 last Monday night to capture the Women's City League Championship.

It was the second and clinching win of the tournament for Cone Y over the defending champion Reweavers.

The Reweavers won the regular season title after taking the loop down last year and were heavily favored in the tourney. Cone Y scored an upset in the first round, however. The Reweavers won the second game between the two teams but Cone Y had too much poise under pressure last night.

Mrs. John Woltz, vice chairman of the city recreation commission, presented trophies after the finals. Cone Y received the playoff trophy and Southern Reweavers was awarded the trophy for leading the regular season. Frankie Culbreth of Southern Life was voted the outstanding player in the league and received a trophy.

The Cone Y team will play Danville, Va., Monday, March 5 in the Interstate YMCA Basketball tournament at Draper. The local team will be defending their last year's championship at this tournament.

Cone All-Stars Beat Charlotte: Defeated By High Point YMCA

Last Friday night, Cone Memorial YMCA All-Stars led by Archie Wheeler's (21) and Eddie Brames' (18) defeated Charlotte YMCA 80 to 77 in a thrill packed overtime game.

Cone Y held a comfortable 12-point lead at half-time with the score standing at 46-34, but saw it vanish in the third quarter as Charlotte scored 27 points, while the locals could only score 13.

The fourth quarter was nip and tuck with Charlotte holding the lead until 2:45 seconds remained in the game. Wheeler made two free throws to tie the game at 69-69. Charlotte held the ball until time ran out in the game. In the overtime Cone Y scored six quick points and coasted into victory.

After taking a 20 minute rest, the locals again took the floor against High Point Y, the team that was favored to win the tournament. High Point had big height advantage, so the locals played a slow control game. It paid off in the first half as the locals held a four point lead at the end of the half by a score of 20 to 16.

High Point started the second half by pressing the locals all over the court as they scored 59 points to the locals 37 in the second half to make the final score read 75 to 57. John Smith led the scoring with 17 points, while Wheeler and Eddie Brame added 15 and 14 respectively.

Cone Employees To Aid Red Cross Next Week

A committee headed by W. O. Leonard, Jr. of the Cone Mills Personnel Department, met at White Oak Hotel last Tuesday to make plans for the annual Red Cross fund drive in the local plants. The campaign, answers a more pressing need than ever before, because 1955 was the worst disaster year in the 75-year history of the American Red Cross.

Due to the vast expenditures on flood and hurricane relief during the past year the disaster funds of this humanitarian organization have been almost depleted. One catastrophe could wipe out all of the disaster funds remaining. The three North Carolina hurricanes, Connie, Diane and Ione, last fall took $462,037 from the Red Cross.

Not only for this reason should contributions be more generous than usual but also because of the many other necessary services offered by the Red Cross.

Widely known and used is the Blood Program. In the past year volunteer donors have given 4,529 pints of blood to patients in local hospitals without charge for the blood itself. A total of 5,000 pints have been used in the past year, all given generously through the Red Cross.

In the Safety Services, 214 classes were taught by 120 volunteer instructors to nearly 3,000 people. These were trained in swimming, life saving and first aid.

Home service and nursing service departments rendered valuable help here in Greensboro.

The Cone Mills committee is made up of: Frank Starling, White Oak; Glenn McDonald, Proximity; Will Marshburn, Revolution; Leo Redmond, Print Works; Grady Haithcock, Power Plant; Lacy Wyrick, Laboratory; Robert Gregory, Water Works; Pat Lambeth, Central Maintenance; Pauline Glenn, Printing and Sample Departments; J. C. Knox, Department, Rudy Permar, and Don Smith, Electricians.

Notices have been placed on plant bulletin boards, and a letter has been sent to each employee giving him an opportunity to contribute through his department head.

Our Very Best Is Needed

Competition and market conditions of today are such that greater emphasis than ever before is being placed upon the quality of woven fabrics.

Every employee should realize that customers are constantly and in greater detail comparing the quality of fabrics produced in one mill to that of fabrics produced in other mills.

All of us realize that the high standards of quality fabrics that are demanded by our customers and the public can only be achieved through the total and combined efforts of every employee in every department in the plant.

An employee's attitude toward his job, his fellow workers and his company is a very important factor in his being able to cooperate and help achieve the high standards of quality that are now in demand.

An employee's indifferent attitude toward the small details of his job—the little things that so vitally affect the quality of a fabric by today's standards can only lead to poor business which, in turn, results in curtailment and losses.

Therefore, it is to the best interest of everyone to put forth an all-out effort of cooperation in helping to produce the highest quality possible.

Don't Forget To Exercise Your Privilege To Vote on Monday, March 5th

Statement of Ceasar Cone

President of Cone Mills Corporation

Regarding Certain Aspects of the

MARCH 5, BOND ELECTION

The employees of Cone Mills Corporation and the other citizens of Greensboro are entitled to know the Cone Mills' attitude toward the March 5 Bond Election issues. I have talked about these matters from time to time, to various individuals and civic groups. For example, I have discussed the War Memorial Coliseum program with the Directors of the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce. At the time that the voluntary contributions were being collected, we at Cone Mills contributed about a third of the $900,000 that was raised. We thought the Memorial was a fine idea. We still do and we would like to see the money spent. We never anticipated, however, that our voluntary contributions would lead to a bond election for more than twice as much additional money. These bonds will be paid off by all of Greensboro's taxpayers. Many Greensboro citizens who have their business plants outside the city limits (and this includes some of the members of the Coliseum Commission, and the Chamber of Commerce, who are promoting the issue) are not subject to city taxation on their plants. No bonds were issued to build World War I Memorial Stadium. It has deteriorated because the income from its use does not support nor maintain it. I am sure that neither the size, nor the location, nor the cost, will insure the Coliseum against the possibility of the same deterioration and disuse; in fact, the greater the amount invested, the higher the depreciation and cost of maintenance.

Our Company owns and operates a completely developed water system. This includes lakes, filter plants, pumping stations, and pipe lines for both raw water and filtered water. The City has been talking in terms of needing some 12 million gallons a day currently, and more later. Cone Mills right now supplies Northeast Greensboro some 6 million gallons a day. This gallonage does not show up in figures being used by the City in discussing its present or future needs. The City may be expecting us to continue to serve some thousands of its citizens from our own water system. We should be willing, and we are willing, to share our water with the City and to allow the City to acquire our vast Richland reservoir system and our filter plant in order to serve all of Greensboro on an equal basis.

The current bond election does provide a million dollars for improving the South Buffalo sewage disposal. The State requires that both North Buffalo and South Buffalo creeks be brought in line with the State's Sanitation laws by 1960. More than half of the City's sewage and industrial waste, and all of Cone Mills' sewage and industrial waste, runs through the North Buffalo outfall. No bonds are included in the present proposals for improving this disposal system. Is waste disposal for Cone Mills and the neighboring portion of Greensboro to fall to Cone Mills to handle, just as the water supply for this area has remained a Cone Mills responsibility? And don't forget that currently the City is furnishing both water and sewer to large areas outside the city limits. Why could not these areas be taken into the City so that additional property values would be added to help share the tax load and thus help pay for the City's pressing needs?

I expect the City will soon come to the public with another multi-million dollar bond issue, to include the funds necessary to purchase the Cone Mills water system, to build an adequate North Buffalo Disposal Plant, and to build various road by-passes for the "outer loop" and accesses that would help our 7,000 employees get to and from their daily jobs. In fairness to our citizens, the City Administration should make it plain that these additional bond issues will have to be proposed, and that they will certainly affect the tax rates. The Coliseum bonds, if issued at all, belong in this second group of proposals, not in the first group. If the entire bond situation facing the City were presented to the citizens now, they would be able to evaluate properly each issue, and a fairer and more enlightened decision as to need and timing could be expected. A vote based upon such a full and enlightened understanding would in our opinion reflect to the best interest of the City of Greensboro now and in the future. Our taxes, City and County and School District—and you should know this—are now about five times greater than the tax on one of our other mills, size for size, in another Southern community, and Greensboro's present water rates are a little more than double those in a comparable Southern community.

Our Company has taken pride and pleasure in meeting its civic obligations. These include its tax obligations and also the calls made on its resources for the fine charitable and character-building organizations that make Greensboro a progressive and happy community. We hope to be able to continue to be the part of Greensboro that we have been in the past. Certain positions expressed herein are intended to give pause to the citizens who are entitled to vote on the current bond election issues. If the ad valorem taxes in this community continue to mount, it is going to increase the threat to the continued financial health of such of the Company's properties as are located in Greensboro.

Marketing Related To Textile Machinery

CHARLOTTE—Some questions puzzling to both manufacturers of cotton and those who grow cotton for the staple market or for seed may be answered by representatives of the textile machinery industry at the 12th Spinner-Breeder Conference.

The conference sponsored by the Delta Council will be held at the Charlotte Hotel, March 7 and 8. Co-hosts during the two day session are the American Cotton Manufacturers Institute and the Combed Yarn Spinners Association.

Appearing on the American Textile Machinery panel will be Elmer McVey, Vice President, Saco-Lowell Shops, Boston, Massachusetts, and J. H. Bolton, Jr., Assistant Treasurer, Whitin Machine Works, Whitinsville, Massachusetts. Malcolm E. Campbell, Dean of School of Textiles, North Carolina State College, will preside at the panel session. James H. Hunter, Vice President of American Textile Machinery Association, and Vice President also of James Hunter Machine Company, North Adams, Massachusetts, will introduce the speakers.

How advancements in textile machinery may overcome some marketing hazards relative to the cotton crop produced by modern cultivation and harvesting methods is one question to be explored.

It is pointed out that in 1955 25% of the cotton crop was harvested with machines, compared to only 6% in 1949. With the trend toward mechanization on the rise mills are faced with the problem of using over-dried cotton that has undergone excessive cleaning at the gin, or taking out the trashy content with newer and more efficient machinery at the mill.

The economic necessity of producing quality goods from grades of cotton lower than may have been used in former years for similar counts of yarn is one of the mill man's worries of today. That this necessity may be met through technological advancements in modern textile machinery will be an important phase of discussion.

Another mill problem has been the maintenance of high breaking strength of yarns with the trend of cotton usage being more and more toward shorter staple cottons. The effect modern capital equipment will have on quality of the product as well as costs of manufacturing will be described by the textile machinery experts.
